AIM:

To design and develop a responsive restaurant webpage titled "Krishna Godavari Kitchen" using HTML and CSS to showcase the restaurant's menu, specialities, pricing, and contact details.

DESCRIPTION:

This project is a front-end web application for a restaurant showcasing authentic Telugu cuisine. The page uses semantic HTML sections for the header, navigation, welcome message, food menu, pricing table, and contact information. CSS grid layouts are utilized to present food items cleanly in cards, alongside custom styling for typography, tables, background colors, and image containers.

ALGORITHM:

1. Start.
2. Create the index.html file and define the base structure with header, nav, sections, and footer.
3. Build the navigation bar linking to internal page sections (Home, Menu, About, Contact).
4. Develop the Menu section using CSS Grid to display food items as individual cards containing images, names, and prices.
5. Insert an HTML table structure to display the complete menu and pricing systematically in rows and columns.
6. Create a style.css file to apply visual styling, including colors, fonts, flexbox for the logo, and grid layouts for the menu.
7. Link the CSS file to the HTML document.
8. Run and test the webpage layout in a web browser to ensure all sections render accurately.
9. Stop.

Program Code:

/index.html

```
<!DOCTYPE html>
<html>
